

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for organizing and consulting electronic data in a media library, the electronic data originating from a plurality of sources and being supplied in various forms. The method provides a universal link between these various forms of electronic data in such a way that the electronic data can be consulted, stored and reused on common media within the media library. The method is particularly adaptable for off-line consultation of documents collected on the Web or from any document resource.